UNION EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

Increasing Interest in the Services—
Good Congregations—Deep Impressions—Fine Addresses.

The union evangelistic services brought out large congregations on Sunday last and were productive of great good. Mr. Crossley preached in the morning in Grace Church. In the afternoon he gave a strong and practical address to men—an address that will not soon be forgotten. In the evening Trinity Church and Sunday School were packed to the doors with an audience that listened spell bound to a sermon of over one hour on "Mysteries." The services during the week have increased in interest and power. The sermon on "The Unpardonable Sin" was a very clear and able exposition of a confessedly difficult subject. The service this (Friday) evening will be of special interest to young men and women. On Sunday next the evangelist will preach in Trinity Church in the morning and in the evening there will be a mass meeting in Grace Church. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a meeting in Grace Church for men and women, the men occupying the body of the church, the women the gallery. You are cordially invited to these services.

lay being a holiday the council Tuesday evening.

Mr. Steacy was absent and Reeve occupied the chair.

Present—Councillors Alexander, Simpson, Graham and

minutes of the last regular sessions were read and confirmed.

Communication was read from

H. Cowan, Medical Health Officer, stating that from a sanitary point of view it was absolutely necessary that a sewer be constructed on the north side of Bridge street, between East and John streets, commencing at the residence of Dr. Simpson and meeting with the John street communication was also read

from C. W. Hambly bearing on the subject. He had constructed a room from his residence, but had been refused by the Medical Health Officer to make connection with the sewer, although others along the street were at present using it for the purpose as he wished to use it. He asked that a proper sewer be constructed and charged for as improvement.

Communication of Reeve Osborne and Mr. Carson on the communication to the Medical Health Officer was filed, and that the Local Health Officer be asked to make a recommendation in accordance with the provisions of the Medical Health

Medical Health Officer also had communication before the council in reference to more efficient drainage in Union and Richard streets are particularly between Union and Richard streets.

Communication of a sanitary standpoint this needed prompt attention.

Drainage in question is a natural course and runs through private property. Communication ordered filed.

Mr. Graham, chief of police asked for fourteen days' leave of absence on a hunting trip, said he would be absent on October

Communication of Councillors Walters and Simpson on the request was granted.

Mr. J. Roy, of the Napanee Iron Works, laid before the council a communication he had received from the native of Messrs. Decatur, Co., Montreal. The writer stated he would like a report from the town in reference to any concession the town might be willing to make above named company for their industry at Napanee.

Company has received several communications from other towns, but would not hear from Napanee, before a decision in the selection of a location.

Communication of Councillors Simpson and Alexander the Mayor appointed an investigating committee to investigate the report of Councillors Simpson, Walters and Walters.

Communication to the council

BARDOLPH.

On Monday evening last over fifty persons of the congregation of Hay Bay Methodist Church assembled at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Cartwright Hawley, Bardolph, and presented Mr. and Mrs. Hawley with a quartered oak library table and a beautiful electric reading lamp. Miss Lena Wheeler (Mr. and Mrs. Hawley's adopted daughter) was given a very pretty ornamental clock by the younger members of the gathering. Mr. Hawley and family expect soon to move to Napanee, having leased his farm to Charles Stevens.

Mr. and Mrs. Kanous, Wolfe Island, and Mrs. H. Bernard, Napanee, spent Monday at George Hawley's.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawley and little daughter, Dorothy, of Winnipeg have been visiting relatives and calling on friends in this vicinity during the past week.

Quite a number from this place attended the Sunday school convention held in Gretna last week.

DESERONTO ROAD.

Mr. Brock Mason's house near the Boundry Road, which has been without a tenant for a long time is again occupied.

Quite a few families with loads of movables have passed up this road on their way to Deseronto. A while ago the saying was "Watch Deseronto go" but now things have changed and it reads "Watch Deseronto grow."

The canning factory at the west end has done a rushing business in tomatoes this season. The factory is still running but will shortly close for this year.

Mr. Ed. Rendell has been over in Prince Edward buying beef cattle and milk cows.

Mrs. Joshua Switzer of the Sand Hill, is on the sick list.

The evangelistic services, which are held in Napanee by Rev. H. T. Crossley are well patronized by the people from here.

Mrs. Edith McCaul is having a new wagon house built by Mr. Rendell of Napanee.

Mr. Jim Waterbury of Deseronto, is making some changes in the interior of Mr. Austin Kimmerly's house.

The bread wagon still continues to make its usual trips from Deseronto.

Chapped hands and roughness of skin quickly relieved by a 10c bottle of Wallace's Glycerine and Rose Water.

MOSCOW.

The anniversary services on Sunday last were well attended, and impressive sermons were preached both morning and evening, by Rev. W. D. P. Wilson. Collections amounted to $12.

Among some of the Thanksgiving visitors we noticed were: Mr. and Mrs. George Quail and daughters, Ruby and Gladys, Kingston, at L. S. Evans'; Dr. A. M. Bell, wife and two children, Toronto, at J. S. Bell's; Mrs. W. W. Hartman and Miss W. Hartman, Cobden, at W. Close's; Mr. and Mrs. A. Guess, Sydenham. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hartman, Newburgh. Mr. and Mrs. K. N. Storms, Wilton, at A. A. Asselstine's; H. W. Hoffman, Napanee, at his father's, W. L. Huff-

Card, Niagara Falls, at Mrs. Geo. Card's; Miss L. Scott, Kingston, at W. A. Benn's.

The Thanksgiving entertainment on Monday night was a decided success in spite of the inclemency of the weather. Miss Tuite, Belleville, sustained her previous good records and delighted her hearers with many good readings. Mrs. Powell, soloist, Enterprise, was suffering with a severe cold and had to cancel part of her numbers, and Yarker choir could only give part of their numbers owing to the absence of their tenor (on account of the serious illness of his mother) which rather seemed to shorten the program. PURITY and QUALITY

These two essentials explain the great increase in demand for our bread since the installation of our new electrical bread mixer.

We have now a thoroughly up-to-date and sanitary bread plant, including bread mixer, sanitary steel troughs, etc. As a result we are able to place before the public a pure, clean wholesome, smooth-grained loaf of bread.

We ask all housewives who desire purity and quality in their bread to try a loaf of this bread and be convinced of its superiority.

NEGRO RUNS AMUCK.

Unknown Colored Man Wounds Four
In Toronto.

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—Enraged by a dispute over the amount of money he had laid on the bar in Smith's Hotel, an unknown negro ran amuck at eleven o'clock last night, slashing four people with a razor, one of whom, John Consworth, a porter at the hotel, lies at the General Hospital in a critical condition. The negro, up to an early hour this morning, had not been caught by the police.

Walking up to the bar in Smith's Hotel, the man laid a five-dollar bill on the counter, and called for a drink. After he had received the drink and his change, he declared that there were two bills stuck together, and wanted more change. He was refused and commenced to show fight, upon which, Consworth, who has been a porter in the hotel for fourteen years, attempted to eject him. Drawing the razor from his pocket, the negro slashed Consworth across the neck, inflicting a deep wound which mis-

SUFFRAGETTE GETS IN

Mrs. Pankhurst Free to Deliver Lectures in the U. S.

President Wilson and Secretary of Labor Confer and Issue a Formal Order Revoking the Edict of Deportation Made By the Special Board at Ellis Island—She Promises to Leave on Nov. 27.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Ameri- ca's doors were opened yesterday to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and during the few weeks covered by her lecture engagements the British militant suffragist leader is free to go where she will in the United States. An order releasing the much-discussed visitor from detention at Ellis Island, N.Y., and revoking the deportation order of the special enquiry board was issued yesterday after President Wilson had conferred with Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor, and a formal hearing before Immigration Commissioner Caminetti on Mrs. Pankhurst's appeal had been concluded.

Secretary Wilson announced that he and the President had agreed that Mrs. Pankhurst should be admitted "on her own recognizance," with the understanding that she should depart when she had fulfilled her lecture engagements. Both the President and Secretary agreed with Commissioner Caminetti in the opinion that there was an element of doubt as to whether the acts for which Mrs. Pankhurst has been convicted in England constituted moral turpitude, or were political in character.

Commissioner Caminetti last night issued a formal statement outlining the reasons for his decision in the case.

"Upon carefully considering the entire record and all of the circumstances of the case, I conclude," he said, "that the best disposition to make of the matter will be to accept the assurances of all parties concerned, and admit Mrs. Pankhurst on her own recognizance to depart from the country at the termination of her engagements, and so recommend."

Acting Secretary Post and Chief Parker of the law division, sat with Commissioner Caminetti and the array of attorneys was drawn up in a battery at a line of tables.

There was a rush for admission to the small chamber, and it quickly was filled with women who did not reveal their sympathies.

Herbert Reeves, attorney for the British leader, first presented a long brief, reviewing first, the facts, and then contended that the acts of which Mrs. Pankhurst had been convicted in England, were purely political offences.

"It is respectfully submitted," he said, "that at the time of the commission of the acts complained of, there was an uprising or revolt on the part of the present women in England, that this uprising or revolt was of a political nature, and that any crimes committed by Mrs. Pankhurst, if any were committed by her, were crimes purely of a political nature and not such as to involve moral turpitude."

At the end of his argument, Mr. Reeves announced that in the event of a decision against Mrs. Pankhurst, which, he said, parenthetically, he did not expect, he would ask Commis-

SULZER STARTS AGAIN

Impeached Governor Starts at Foot of Political Ladder.

He Receives a Pressing Invitation From a Large Number of Progressive Voters In the Sixth Assembly District to Run For the Legislature and Accepts — Republicans Not Altogether Pleased.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—William Sulzer, impeached as governor of the state, was nominated for the Assembly last night by the Progressives of the Sixth Assembly district. Mr. Sulzer in 1889 began his public career as a member of this branch of the State Legislature.

The nomination of the impeached executive was brought about against the desires of state and county leaders of the Progressive party. The sentiment among the Progressives throughout New York and in other states was generally against the move, according to State Chairman Theodore Douglas Robinson and County Chairman Francis W. Bird.

Mr. Bird in a letter to Mr. Steindler before the meeting, began cautioned him regarding "the unwisdom of nominating Mr. Sulzer."

After Mr. Sulzer had been nominated last night there was a demonstration in the East Side meeting hall. Bands in the street outside played national airs. The nomination was made unanimous, and Mr. Sulzer accepted.

A few minutes after the Progressive convention met last night in New York, Wm. Sulzer issued a statement telling why he had consented to come back to Albany as a member of the Assembly.

There never was any doubt but that he could have the nomination if he wanted it, he declared. Nor does he doubt that the first of January will see him back where he began his political career twenty years ago. He and his friends also are convinced that he will go from there to the speakership and thence back to the "People's House."

To-day Mr. Sulzer will go to New York to begin a campaign for the Assembly immediately, and speak by day and night up to election time.

The rabbis of every synagogue in the sixth district called at the executive mansion yesterday to urge Sulzer to make the race. With them they brought petitions asking Mr. Sulzer to run. There are said to be only 5,700 voters in the entire district.

For a time the former governor refused to give his callers an affirmative answer. He told them that his wife had urged that he get out of Starved Leader at Meeting.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—A dramatic appearance at the weekly suffragettes meeting was made yesterday by Miss Annie Kennedy, organizer of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant suffragette organization. Suffering from the effects of a "hunger strike" in Holloway Jail, the idol of the women's movement, looking extremely feeble, was borne into the hall on a stretcher and given a memorable reception by the crowded audience of women who stood on chairs and cheered until they were weary.

This was Miss Kennedy's first appearance in public since her release and she reached the hall in an ambulance, escorted by a guard of militant suffragettes in taxicabs.

The stretcher, supported on chairs, was placed in the middle of the platform, where Miss Kennedy lay motionless and only able to whisper a few words to her friends.

One Girl Is Dead and Her Sister Is In a Serious Condition.

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—Grace Snelling, aged 22, is dead, and her sister, Dorothy, aged 19, is at the General Hospital in a serious condition, as a result, it is believed, of inhaling coal gas from the furnace in their boarding house at 8 Wilton crescent. Mrs. Williams, with whom the girls were boarding, stated last evening that there was no smell of gas in the girls' room when she opened the door yesterday morning. The police, on the other hand, state that when they arrived at the house there was a perceptible odor of gas all through the house. At the General Hospital, Dorothy Snelling, who regained consciousness last night, expressed the opinion that it was escaping coal gas which caused her sister's death.

The girls, who came to Canada from England six years ago, moved to 8 Wilton crescent about four days ago from a boarding-house across the street.

Lake Superior Stormswept.

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 21. — A northwest storm which whipped Lake Superior Sunday night, caught the rudderless steamer Lackawanna, being towed into Duluth by the tug Sabin, and some fear was expressed here for her.

The storm delayed the steamer W. L. Brown for ten hours. The E. C. Pope, the Shenandoah, and numerous other vessels were delayed.

The boom of the Inter-state bridge will be blocked by the storm and traffic will be blocked in the Superior channel until repairs can be made.

Weather reports on the Vermillion range indicate low temperatures with snow fall at Tower, Ely, Winton and reaching to Fairbanks. This is the first snow of the season.

Suggestion Coldly Received.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The proposal by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, that Great Britain and Germany should declare a "naval holiday" in 1914, was received without sympathy by the German Government which regards it as not calling for a reply. It is generally considered doubtful whether any official notice will be taken of the suggestion, although it is thought Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg may perhaps refer to the subject later on in his course of the debate in the Imperial Parliament.

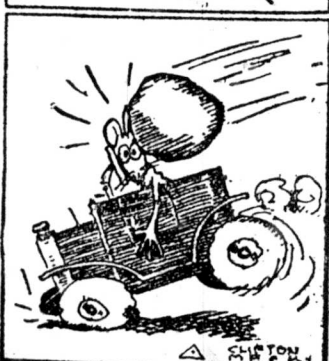

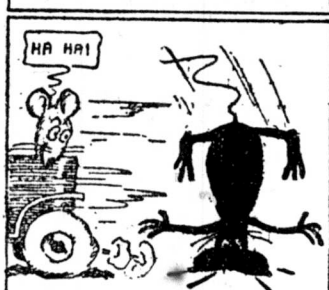

Land Tax Planned.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 21.—Direct taxation upon the unearned increments of the province is new legislation planned by Hon. Arthur L. Sifton, Premier of Alberta. The bill, which has been discussed at length by members of the Government at Cabinet meetings here, probably will be submitted at the present session of the Provincial Legislature, and it is expected the measure will receive immediate attention.

NATIONALIST ALLIANCE STRONG

TORIES USED LAURIER'S IMPERIALIST SPEECHES AGAINST LIBERALS IN CHATEAUGUAY.

That the Chateauguay bye-election was won by the Conservatives—not only by the use of money and other corrupt arguments familiar to the "Manitoba methods" of the Borden-Rogers Government—but also by catching the remnants of the Nationalist vote with a cry against a Canadian Navy is now plain. A couple of days before the election the riding was flooded with copies of a campaign entitled "L'Opinion," which was issued by the Tory campaign organization and paid for with Tory money. Its main object was to make it appear that the Laurier Naval policy was designed to offer Great Britain "a tribute of Blood" from the Canadians especially from the French Canadians.

On the other hand this campaign imitation newspaper carefully insinuated the impression that the Borden Naval policy was one by which Canada's whole obligation to the Mother Country would be wiped out with an emergency present of $35,000,000 and that thereafter there would be no fear of Canadians being plunged into naval preparations.

In 1911, Bourassa and his Nationalist followers, whose campaign was paid for by the Jingo-Tories of Montreal and Ontario, attacked the Laurier Naval policy, declaring that it would mean conscription and the dragging of good French-Canadians to be disembowelled on British warships, fighting in foreign wars. In Chateauguay the policy was modified to a denunciation of the "tribute of blood" and an intimation that Mr. Borden's policy of sending a few million dollars to buy empty warships was the best way out of the problem of Imperial defence.

PATRONAGE WAS PROMISED.

The other main plank upon which this Tory-Nationalist campaign sheet pleaded for the Conservative candidate was patronage. An unblushing attempt was made to bribe the voters

Wilfred Laurier, want? They desire not only to give $35,000,000, but then to build two fleets which will cost some $150,000,000, and then ABOVE ALL TO PAY TO ENGLAND A TRIBUTE WHICH SHE DOES NOT DEMAND, THE TRIBUTE OF BLOOD."

TWO FACED CAMPAIGN.

QUOTES LAURIER'S IMPERIALISM AGAINST HIM.

The Conservative campaign sheet in Chateauguay proceeds under a big heading "THE BLOOD TRIBUTE" to quote extracts from Sir Wilfred Laurier's speech on the Naval resolution in Parliament on December 12th, 1912, in which he said that unless he mistook the Canadian people they did not want this hybrid contribution policy "but they will insist that Canada's contribution to Great Britain should be of men as well as money." This latter emphasized with italics.

It again quotes Sir Wilfred Laurier in the same speech pointing out that Great Britain was never so wealthy as to-day and that "what she needs to-day then is the heart, the energy and the muscles of her subjects throughout the entire world." This again emphasized with italics.

The article again quotes Sir Wilfred as saying:

"If there be an emergency, if England were in danger—no, I will not use that expression; but if England were on trial with one or two or more of the great European powers, my Right Honorable friend (Mr. Borden) might come and ask not $35,000,000 but two, three or four times this amount. We would put at the disposal of England all the resources of Canada, and there would not be a single dissentient vote."

HON. MR. GRAHAM TOO LOYAL FOR TORIES.

Next this Tory campaign sheet quotes Hon. G. P. Graham as saying in the same debate "What do these French-Canadians think of a Government which wishes to give to the Empire aid in money, and WHICH REFUSES OUR LIVES FOR ITS DEFENCE" and "announcing that they have money to lend but that their ancient fighting spirit is gone and that they will not furnish a single man. . . . Let us give to the Empire that of which she has much greater need than money, that is the shedding of our blood if it is necessary."

Then Dr. Michael Clark is quoted, in italics as saying: "If the storm of which Mr. Borden spoke were to break upon the Empire not a drop of Canadian blood would be spilt or offered."

In the same way the Tory sheet quotes Messrs. Guthrie and Boivin, mediately, the whole country rang with reports of the unparalleled corruption and violence which marked the Conservative campaign. On Nov. 18, 1912, a protest was entered charging, amongst other things, that Hon. Robert Rogers, then Minister of the Interior, Premier Sir Rodmond Borden, of Manitoba, and other ministers, had connived with officers of the law to prosecute and imprison persons working for the Liberal candidates. That is almost a year ago. Since then the Liberal lawyers have made every effort to bring this election protest to trial. They have been met by every legal resource known to expert lawyers. These efforts to delay the trial have been fought from the Manitoba courts clear up to the Supreme Court of Canada and back again, the Conservative blockers being defeated in each instance. The case has not yet come to trial and apparently every nerve will be strained to prevent its reaching the courts before Parliament meets again. The result will be that Mr. Alexander Morrison, whose seat was won by what has since become contemptuously known as Hon. Mr. Rogers' "Manitoba methods," will have for at least two sessions of Parliament held a seat which, it is claimed, was won by open and flagrant corruption.

As Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Borden declared that his policy would include "a determined and vigorous effort to reform and enforce our electoral law" and "expedite the hearing of election petitions. . . . to provide for a thorough investigation of corrupt practices, and if necessary to appoint an independent prosecuting officer charged with this duty."

Premier Borden, benefitting by the Rogers "Manitoba methods," is as anxious to avoid enforcing the election laws as he was loud in demanding it—when in opposition.

FLOWERS AS FOOD.

In India the Natives Eat Bassia Tree Blossoms Uncooked.

In these days one would hardly call a dinner of rosebuds a feast, nor should we be inclined to accept an invitation to dine on the blossoms of the pumpkin vine. Yet some Indians, like the old Aztecs, used to esteem these flowers, when properly prepared, a great dainty.

So, in the same way, do natives of many parts of India depend for food upon the blossoms of the bassia tree. They do not need even to cook the flowers, but make a good meal of them raw. These blossoms are described as sweet and sickly in odor and taste. They are sometimes dried in the sun, when they are kept and sold in bazaars as a regular article of diet.

The trees are so highly esteemed that the threat of cutting down their bassia trees will generally bring an unruly tribe to terms. This is perhaps not to be wondered at when it is considered that a single tree will yield from 200 to 400 pounds of flowers. The Parsees cook the flowers and also make sweetmeats of them.

"Nobody would be inclined to deny that smoked fish and smoked meat are agreeable varieties in our bill of fare, but few, perhaps, would feel ready to plead guilty to a taste for smoked flowers. And yet, when we give to the clove its well earned place among flavorings we are making use of a smoked flower bud. The buds grow on a small evergreen and are plucked from the ends of the branches before they expand. Then they are dried in the sun and smoked over a wood fire to give them the brown color.—Phila-

to a denunciation of the "tribute of blood" and an intimation that Mr. Borden's policy of sending a few million dollars to buy empty warships was the best way out of the problem of Imperial defence.

PATRONAGE WAS PROMISED.

The other main plank upon which this Tory-Nationalist campaign sheet pleads for the Conservative candidate was patronage. An unblushing attempt was made to bribe the voters of the riding by pointing out the likelihood of plenty of Government money and works if they would only defeat Hon. Mr. Fisher.

In the course of an appeal to the electors of Chateaugay on the alleged record of the Government this election sheet says: "With regard to the ticklish question of Canada's participation in imperial defence, it (the Borden Government) has given the proper solution in not refusing the emergency aid, and in making the metropolis thoroughly understand that any new concession on the part of Canada must receive its equivalent in representation in the councils of the Empire."

"This attitude, at once firm and patriotic, has saved Canada's honor and prevented her from throwing herself, like the old European nations, into the ruinous gulf of armament."

RUSTLE OF THE HAY.

DIRECT ATTEMPT TO BRIBE WHOLE RIDING.

"L'Opinion," the French Tory campaign sheet in Chateaugay says: "If the County of Chateaugay only wished to consult its own best interests it would already have a hundred reasons to give its support to the Government candidate. During fifty years that it has elected Liberal members it has always been neglected in the distribution of patronage. Even to-day the supporters of the old regime only want to impose upon it a candidate taken from the outside county, and give as their reason that the Chief of the Opposition needs Mr. Fisher to fight the Government. Let the County of Chateaugay bring its support to the National work, let it at least give a more practical attention to its own best interests."

THE "BLOOD TRIBUTE."

ATTEMPT TO SCARE FRENCH-CANADIANS WITH NEW VERSION OF NATIONALIST CRY.

In a carefully veiled partisan appeal on the Naval question in Chateaugay L'Opinion, the Tory election sheet, makes the usual adroit use of "Canadiens," so as to make it apparently apply only to the "Canadiens" of Quebec, instead of the whole Canadian people—and uses this especially in appealing to whatever French-Canadian fear there may be of the "blood tribute."

The article says that Mr. Borden's proposition is to—"consult the Admiralty with regard to immediate needs, and then to consult the people upon the permanent policy to be adopted, IF THERE BE NEED TO ADOPT ONE. And this policy itself will depend upon the representation to be given Canada in the councils of the Empire."

"And what is it now that the Liberals, following their Chief, Sir their ancient nightingale spirit is gone and that they will not furnish a single man. . . . Let us give to the Empire that of which she has much greater need than money, that is the shedding of our blood if it is necessary."

Then Dr. Michael Clark is quoted, in italics as saying: "If the storm of which Mr. Borden spoke were to break upon the Empire not a drop of Canadian blood would be spilt or offered."

In the same vein the Tory sheet quotes Messrs. Guthrie and Boivin, embellishing with capitals and italics any reference to blood or fighting by "Canadiens."

It winds up by quoting Hon. Dr. Pugsley as saying: "You are willing to furnish the ships, but you have not sufficient patriotism or courage to equip them with Canadian sailors (and in italics) to place our young men behind the guns and send them to fight for Canada and the Empire."

This is the kind of stuff used by the Jingo-Tories behind Mr. Borden when they come to the Province of Quebec. The unholy alliance with the Nationalists is as strong as ever. The Tories who delight Ontario with their shouts of patriotism do not hesitate to quote and distort every loyal and imperial utterance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his followers in order to foster opposition to them in the Province of Quebec.

How will this style of double dealing suit the electors of East Middlesex and South Bruce? They must agree with Sir Wilfrid Laurier when he said that he would rather be defeated and in opposition than elected and in power by the means which Mr. Borden had adopted. Hon. Sidney Fisher, defeated in Chateaugay—retained his personal and political honor—the day won was for the Tories, but they sacrificed both.

THEIR TUNE IS CHANGED.

TORIES NOW WANT BYE-ELECTIONS SEPARATELY UNDER ROGERS RULE.

While Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Borden was wont to express great discontent that the Liberal Government did not bring on all its bye-elections in bunches. It was his habit to indignantly claim that the Government was deliberately stringing out bye-elections so as to be able to centralize all its forces on each, and thus defeat the Conservatives piece-meal. The records show that the Liberals never deliberately delayed bye-elections and when convenient several were brought off on the same day. For instance, no less than five bye-elections were decided on December 14, 1908—and the Liberals won every one of them—while in most other instances bye-elections came in groups of two and three.

Since 1911 the contested bye-elections have been absolutely segregated by the Borden majority so as to give Hon. Mr. Rogers ample opportunity to have full swing with his election winning brigade and "Manitoba methods."

There was no reason in the world why the bye-elections in Chateaugay East Middlesex and South Bruce could not have been held simultaneously. Had Mr. Borden any regard for his past complaints and promises the three would have been settled on the same day. Mr. Borden, however, had to subordinate party promises to partisan necessity.

It is known beyond peradventure that immense sums of money and quantities of liquor were used as Tory arguments in Chateaugay. With the same workers and same methods it is likely that the same trail of corruption will be left in East Middlesex and South Bruce.

WHY THIS DELAY?

MR BORDEN HAS FORGOTTEN HIS PROMISES OF SWIFT PROCEDURE IN ELECTION TRIALS.

The Macdonald bye-election took place on October 12, 1912, and im-USELESS THINGS.

Ghosts of the Past That Were Formidable In Their Time.

"An enumeration of the useless," says Richard Jeffries, "would almost be an enumeration of everything hitherto pursued."

What a pile of junk the men of the world labored to produce!

Heap up all the books that are of no possible use, the contents of ancient libraries, books of heraldries, theologies and discarded sciences, books of wrangling and tedious arguments the world has willingly forgot, and the myriads of chaff products that pour like a ceaseless Niagara from the modern press; heap them up into one mountain, and from its top you could look down upon the Himalayas.

Think of the ruined cities of the Orient, the ghostly temples of Egypt, the broken fragments of castles by the Rhine and the Danube, the Colosseum, the Golden House of Nero, the Garden of Hadrian at Tivoli! Think of the useless sciences men studied, the faded religions they once believed, the inconsequential wars of history, the reams of antiquated law, the gold gathered together only to be misspent! Think of the useless passions, dreams, thoughts and desires of men!

One is sometimes tempted to think that we front the great questions of life, love and death as freshly, with as little advantage from experience, as the cave man.—Dr. Frank Crane in Woman's World.

No Promotion.

The late Bishop Doane of Albany, a strict conservative, had his own views as to woman's place in the world. No feminist this good Tory bishop, no advocate of "newness" of any sort.

Bishop Doane believed in marriage of the real old fashioned kind, and to bridegrooms at weddings he used sometimes to make a little speech.

"My young friend," he would say to the pale and nervous bridegroom, patting him on the back, "you are now embarking on a long, hazardous voyage, and I bid you remember the Finnish proverb.

"For the Finnish sailors have a proverb to this effect:

WHAT ECHO ANSWERED.

I STOOD within a wooded glen
Before a mountain wall,
And, ringing to my ear again,
The echo mocked my call.
"O Spirit of the Glen," I cried,
"Will all be bliss divine
When fast the nuptial knot is tied
And Phyllis shall be mine?
Beneath the lamplight's rosy glow
At even shall I sit
And watch her fairy fingers sew
Or mend or hem or knit?"
And echo answered, "NIT!"

"When to my cozy home I haste
For dinner or for tea
What dainty dishes rare of taste
Will she prepare for me?
Of 'boarding out' I've had my fill
My appetite's a quiver
Oh, say what precious morsel will
Her skill to me deliver?"
And echo answered, "Liver!"

"That's it, Mr. Wasserman. If you only had the asthma you'd make a good flathouse janitor. Yes, they went up, and the darty heard them coming
and was ready for them with an old chair leg. She was spitting on her hands for a good grip when Mrs. O'Sullivan told her that the quarrel was all made up and the dove of peace had come there to hatch her brood. She'd been thumped pretty hard, and she was rather offish, but she toed the mark
after awhile, and there was kissing
and hugging all around. An hour later O'Sullivan gave a morning tea, which was mostly beer and crackers, and such quietness fell upon the house that I began to feel lonesome. About 1 o'clock in the afternoon the three got dressed to go out in company, and of course each one put on her best duds

to make the other jealous. You know what women are, Mr. Wasserman?"
"Vhell, maybe! I lif mit my old womans for oafar dwenty year."

Out For an Airing.

"Of course. They praised each other's hats and dresses as they stood in the hall, but it was all hypocrisy, you know. The countess was perhaps the best dressed, though it was a pretty even thing all over. They sallied away like three graces, and I kicked the goat
out of the halls, run the dogs on to the street and heaved the carts in the back yard. For two hours I had a house to be proud of, and I had made up my mind to tell McMurphy to raise the rent when the ladies returned. They had treated each other to clam broth,
ice cream and candy and had come back in a taxi to end up in a swagger
way. When the taxi came dashing up there was a sensation on that block,
and fifty other women turned pale as they looked out of their windows."

"Vhas some rubber tires on der wheels of dot taxi?" asked the grocer
as he seemed to call up a picture in his mind's eye.

"Aye, there was, Mr. Wasserman," replied the janitor. "Yes, there was rubber tires on every wheel—none
missing—and the choffer was in uniform. For a minute or two I felt so proud that I was determined to ask McMurphy to raise my salary to $20 a month and fuel throwed in; but, alas,
it was the taxi that was our undoing."

"Did she broke down?"
"Not at all. The ladies didn't have money enough to settle the fare, you see, or they wanted to beat each other.
They could scrape only 45 cents together, while the fare was a dollar and a half, and the choffer wasn't slow in giving them his opinion of bilks. It wasn't two minutes before the whole neighborhood was on to the racket, and then there was fun. At first the three women hung together as against the choffer, but pretty soon Mrs. O'Sulli-Noncommittal George.

George was caught napping.
A pair of soft little hands covered
his eyes, and a sweet voice command-

Nothing very dreadful for George in this, you think; but, then, you don't know that George has two sweethearts, and for the life of him he couldn't decide whose voice it was which made it a very embarrassing situation for him. A wrong guess would lead to complications awful to think of. But a happy thought inspired George, and he announced, "It's the dearest, sweetest little girl in all the world."

"Oh, you lovely boy!" gurgled the satisfied one as she removed her hands.

He Is Seventy-One Years of Age

On Easter Eve of the year 1867
Thomas Davey stepped out of the Old Rainbow Tavern, Fleet Street, London, to take a vacation. The next morning at eleven o'clock, instead of carrying out this threat, he donned a white apron in that ancient Arcadia of healthy appetites known throug-out the world as "Simpson's-in-the-Strand." At that moment he came into his own; and it is still his own.
And although the throne from which he holds sway as chef of the mighty Simpson's is situated two storeys below ground, in a little six by six snug-gery of an office, he ranks with King Nicholas of Montenegro, who rules from many storeys above ground in his tiny mountain fastness, as one of the veteran sovereigns of Europe. On the thirty-first of July "Davey"—he lost the "Thomas" long ago—reached seventy-one years of age, the same age as King Nicholas. And again to draw a comparison with the Balkan ruler, he wields his despotic sceptre
with an arm that is unshaken by age and yet with a democracy that has brought all the great London Bohemians of the last half century to bend
the knee before his chefs d'oeuvre of culinary art.

Did I say chef d'oeuvre? Davey

ERRORS OF DEATH-
BED REPENTANCE

Too Prone to Grasp at the Narrative of the Thief.

Sins of a Lifetime Cannot Be Gotten Rid of by a Prayer at Its End—
A Misunderstood Text—It Has Encouraged Sinners to Continue In Sin—A Misplaced Comma Led to the Error.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Brooklyn, N.Y., Oct. 12.—Pastor
Russell delivered an address here to-day, taking for his text Jesus' words to the dying thief, "Verily I say unto thee this day, thou shalt be with Me in Paradise." (Luke 23:43.) He said:
Few of the Master's words have been so misunderstood as has this text. Its influence is greatly increased by the unscriptural
thought that the dying sinner passes to everlasting torture. Those under the spell of that false doctrine cannot be reproved for wishing to escape from its terrifying influence.
They grasp at the narrative of the thief, and hope that their departed
experienced a momentary repentance,
said, "Jesus, forgive us," and straight away were carried to Paradise.
The absurdity of the proposition is crowded out by the mingling of hope with love for the deceased.

The Pastor then described a funeral service which he once conducted.
The deceased had been murdered in a distant region, and had died a member of no church, and by no means a saint. His poor widow's wails which had interrupted the service, were caused, the Pastor afterward learned, by the thought that her husband had died without having had time to say, "God forgive me," and thus to gain Paradise.

Who can blame the poor woman for thus reasoning? Had she not been so taught by all the great creeds of Christendom? Had not her husband and herself been taking chances of having a moment for repentance before expiring? asked the Pastor. It is a shame that this wrong thought has been so long allowed to keep people from making peace with God
in earlier life.

Repentance Always Proper, of Course.

Pastor Russell did not wish to be misunderstood as discouraging deathbed repentance or any other. He would, however, have all recognize that there are fixed rules of Divine Justice which forbid us to think that there is a hell full of unfortunates
who died suddenly, with no opportunity for repentance; that there is a Heaven full of lucky vagabonds, carried to glory without change of heart or character, merely as a reward for a momentary prayer. Whoever sows a life of sin and self-indulgence will not reap glory, honor and immortality, but a more depraved disposition than that with which he was born.

and Berlin which have found their way into many parts of the British metropolis. As he expresses it in his unalloyed Cockney — for Davey is born well within the sound of Bow Bells — "Wot a man eats makes a man. Well, look at them Frenchies and Germans, then tyke a look at an Englishman. That settles it. 'Ome cookin' for me!'"

Davey's long observance of his netto in his daily life has brought him rotundity of figure.

Davey's rotundity is scarcely surprising; for Davey's menus for Davey
are not slender ones. His eyes twink-led more merrily than ever as he suggested that he would probably partake of the following fare for his dinner that evening: As a starter, Scotch hotch-potch soup, which is mutton liquor with chopepd parseley and cream; then some salmon with lobster sauce, or "a bit o' white bait"—
these merely as ap-ertizers; the real hunger allayer to be roast chicken
and bath chap, which is cured pig's face, or some roast duckling and peas; and then," said Davey, "I should top off with some currant and raspberry tart with lemon pudding
and cream, with a savory of bloaters' roes on toast." This, with some "stout and bitter," and fine old tawny port.

Because of Davey's distinctly English menus he has an enormous following of foreigners, and in summer
the restaurant is crowded with Americans. When the "old Simpson's" fell before the house-breaker nine years ago and a new and palatial Simpson's rose phoenix-like from its fall, Davey scrupulously continued
the old traditions, and the joints still go round on wheeled trays to each guest, the coffee is just the same,
and the old romance is still there,
even though this year the place was again enlarged to meet the requirements.

Many attempts have been made, especially to lure Davey away. Great restaurants have vied in offers for his services, asking him to "name his own price." And then delegations of Simpsonites have gone down the two flights of stairs to wait with bated breath for Davey's decision. But as Davey explained, with just a suspicion of a quaver in his voice, "a quarter of a century ago, when I was still young and foolish, they might have tempted me. But it's too late now.
And as an Englishman, I'm still able to back my cooking against that of any man in the world."

Most Modern Things Ancient.

Discovery of a prehistoric Turkish bath in Ireland suggests again the thought that most of the things about which modern civilization boasts are ancient. An automatic machine was in use to supply sacrificial water in an ancient Grek temple. Queen Maria Theresa had an elevator in her house
at Luxembourg at least as early as 1777, and an omnibus was running in Paris in 1662. In 1667 Robert Hooke conveyed sounds to a distance by distended wire—telephoned, in fact.

Always Follows.

"He is a very promising young man."
"Promising, is he?"
"Yes."
"How much has he promised?"
"What?"
"I merely was asking how much he owes."

Misunderstood.

when I was a lad."
"Aren't they?"
"No."

disposition than any other with which he

The Dying Thief's Prayer.

The Pastor declared that the supposition that the thief asked to go to Heaven with Jesus or that Jesus promised that he would go to Heaven
the same day is a mistake. Jesus did not go to Heaven that day, but to the Bible hell—Hades, Sheol, the tomb.
He remained dead, St. Peter says,
until the third day, when God raised Him from the dead. After His resurrection He appeared to Mary and said, "I have not yet ascended to My Father and your Father, to My God and your God."

The Bible tells that Paradise was lost through Adam's sin, six thousand years ago; and that, as a result of Jesus' death, it will be restored
during the Millennium. Since there was no Paradise when Jesus died,
He could not have meant that the thief would be with Him there that day.

Evidently the thief had caught the thought that the grand, kindly character beside him was probably the Messiah. How to explain the circumstances he knew not, but he defended Jesus. Then with a measure of hope he said, "Lord, when thou comest into thy Kingdom, remember me."

The Pastor then showed that in substance Jesus' reply was, Poor thief, I appreciate your words, and when My Kingdom shall be established, I will reward your kindness.
Notwithstanding this dark day, I am a King; and these experiences are necessary. Be it as you have asked—
"Thou shalt be with Me in Paradise."

The difficulty has been with the translators' wrong thought and the misplacement of the comma. Punctuation is a modern convenience.
There is none in the original Scriptures. Placing the comma where we have done leaves the passage thoroughly in accord with all the Bible.
Properly understood, that passage
leaves not a shadow of Scriptural support to the thought that prayer a moment before death changes the everlasting destiny of anybody.

Both Thieves In the Bible Hell.

The Pastor urged his hearers to get back to the Bible and away from the foolishness of the creeds. The Bible declares that a dead man is dead.
But God's Word stands pledged for a future life for humanity. In due time both thieves will rise from the dead, to receive the blessings purchased by the Redeemer's death.

Solved!

The perplexing question had arisen
many times during their brief matrimonial experience, and again Mrs.
Flint asked her young husband if he thought they could get along without the cook.

"I think so, dear," he answered.
"Why, if the worst comes you can do
the cooking, and I can get my meals
at a restaurant."

Ouch!

One of those dear lady friends of ours who take a particular interest
in other people's affairs got on a car and sat down beside a quiet looking man whose face was badly pitted.

"Why, you poor man!" she exclaimed. "How you must have suffered! How long ago did you have the smallpox?"

"Madam," was the seriously spoken reply, "what evidently drew your attention are not pits of smallpox. I had these put on by a beauty specialist to keep my face from skidding
when I eat watermelon."

LIONS CAUSE PANIC.

Escaped Menagerie Animals Wander
Through German City.

LEIPSIC, Germany, Oct. 21.—Five lions belonging to an American circus obtained their freedom in the streets of Leipsic Sunday night owing to a collision between a street car and their cars while it was on the way to the railroad station, after a performance. The cage was torn open by the shock, and the appearance of the wild animals in the centre of the city created a panic among the thousands of people here to attend the celebration of the centennial of the "Battle of the Nations."

One of the lions entered an hotel, rushed upstairs and proceeded along the corridors, driving the visitors before it into their rooms.

It was sometime before policemen arrived and shot the animal. The other four also were shot and killed in various parts of the city. Nobody was attacked by the lions.

Twenty-Two Were Killed.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 21.—Victims of Sunday's troop train wreck on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad at Bucka-tunna, Miss., were brought to Mobile early yesterday on relief trains. The first of known dead at eight o'clock was twenty-two, most of whom are members of the 17th Coast Artillery.

There were 74 seriously injured soldiers in Mobile hospitals, while a number of the less seriously hurt
were taken to the Government Hospital at Fort Morgan.

He has also decided to suspend,
and probably will abandon altogether
the intended purchase of a new dirigible of the German rigid type.

CLEAN HANDS AND A PURE HEART

The Pictorial Language of the Bible Amazes the Preacher.

The Significance of the Picture—What It is to Ascend Into the Holy Hill—What is Meant by Standing in the Holy Place—Who Have the Clean Hands—What is Signified by a Soul Lifted Up to Vanity—Who Are Those Who Swear Deceitfully—The Terms and Conditions of the Divine Rewards—Christ the Great Exemplar—To Him and to His Followers the Gates of Glory Lift.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—Pastor Russell addressed the Washington Temple Congregation this afternoon, from the text, "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord Or who shall stand in His holy place? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart." Psalm 24: 4, 5. He said:

The pen pictures of the Bible astound us with their clearness, force and pointedness. The Prophet David was not writing with ordinary poetic license, but was stating poetically grand truths which he himself could not fully appreciate. St. Peter tells us that this was the case with all the Prophets.

Then the Pastor, interpreting his text as a prophecy, showed that Mt. Zion typified the Messianic Kingdom, and the holy place of Israel the anti-typical Temple of the future, Jesus Christ being the chief Corner Stone and the faithful saints the living stones.

The context shows that the Psalm applies primarily to the Lord Jesus Christ. "He that hath clean hands" would signify he who is willing and able to keep the Divine Law perfectly. "He that hath a pure heart" is he in whom there is no admixture of disloyalty or selfishness or sin. The Lord Jesus alone could and did keep the Divine Law, both in letter and in spirit.

Other Tests Were Necessary.

The full keeping of the Law was not all requisite in the great Heir of the Abrahamic Covenant. He must fulfil all prophecies concerning Messiah. In these God had caused to be set forth what would indeed test the humility and loyalty of the One performing them.

The Pastor showed conclusively from Scripture that our Redeemer fulfilled these requirements perfectly, and through obedience entered the Messianic glory. He did not swear deceitfully, but kept to the very letter the Covenant of Sacrifice which He made with the Father. Neither did our Lord "lift up His soul unto vanity," nor harken to the Adversary's admonitions. On the contrary, He humbled Himself even unto the death of the cross. Because of His faithfulness, God gave Him a name above every name—Messiah, the King of glory.

"Lift Up Your Heads, Ye Gates." Pastor Russell interpreted the remainder of the Psalm as a picture of our Redeemer entering into His glorious reward. The ushering of Messiah into the honor and glory of the Kingdom, to establish righteousness in the earth, to put down rebellion and sin, and to destroy the works of the Devil

MATTHEW RYAN,

Warden.

W. J. SHANNON,

Treasurer County of Lennox and Addington

County Treasurer's Office, Napanee, July 31st, 1913.

First published in THE NAPANEE EXPRESS, at Napanee, in the County of Lennox and Addington, on August 22nd, 1913.

Him a name above every name—Messiah, the King of glory.

"Lift Up Your Heads, Ye Gates."

Pastor Russell interpreted the remainder of the Psalm as a picture of our Redeemer entering into His glorious reward. The ushering of Messiah into the honor and glory of the Kingdom, to establish righteousness in the earth, to put down rebellion and sin, and to destroy the works of the Devil, is really the ushering in of Jehovah's Kingdom, for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come."

The result of Jesus' conquering work, begun at Calvary and to be completed during His Millennial Reign will be that Jehovah will be hailed Lord of all. In accepting the terms of the Kingdom, the world will really be bowing to Jehovah and entering that condition where He can grant them everlasting life.

"Partakers of His Holiness."

Then the Pastor discussed the Church of Christ, whom God has been selecting from amongst mankind since Pentecost. Unlike the Redeemer, these are members of the Adamic race. Our first thought would be that they would be debarred by Adamic imperfection from participation with the Saviour in His coming glory. But Divine Mercy has made a special arrangement whereby these may become acceptable with the Father now.

The special provision for the Church is that if they make a Covenant of Sacrifice, as Jesus did, the Redeemer will appropriate to them that share of forgiveness and restitution which otherwise would be theirs during the Millennium. This the Scripture designates "justification by faith." Such then are acceptable to God, and joint-heirs of Jesus Christ, if so be that they suffer with Him.

Thenceforth they are treated as New Creatures, and not according to the flesh. With these the stands are heart intentions, not flesh perfection. The Bible shows that they are pure in heart—loyal to God; otherwise they could not have been begotten of the Holy Spirit. As for their hands—lives—the New Creature never had soiled hands of impurity and wilful sin. All fleshly imperfections are covered, through the Redeemer's blood.

But not all who entered into covenant relationship with God through Christ keep their Covenant faithfully. Those who do shall share Jesus' glorious reward. These "more than overcomers" follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth. While some will fail and will receive a lower blessing, yet the fore-ordained number will share with their Lord the Kingdom and the Divine nature.

The Brightness He Saw.

A man who died recently in the north of England and had been living a dishonest life under the cloak of religion, wishing to pose as a good man to the last, said to those around him:

"All is bright before me!"

"Aye," said one of those present, whom he had swindled out of a sum of money, "an' in about ten minnit, thea'll be near enoof to see th' blaze!"—Manchester Guardian.

The Brighter Side.

"Well," chuckled the optimistic fellow, "I've got one satisfaction."

"And what's that?" asked the sympathetic friend.

"If I had succeeded I should probably have made a nuisance of myself, telling people that I was a self-made man."—Detroit Free Press.

PROLOGUE.

Did you ever read a story in which humor of the finest and most delicious sort played the leading part? Did you ever tackle a tale which made you gasp by the originality of its ideas? Did you ever meet some utterly impossible persons who never lived and never could have lived and whom you might meet any day of your life?

They're here, right here in this story. They have the most impossible adventures and get into the most impossible situations, just as you or I might any day if the stage were set just right for us. Furthermore, they are very entertaining people, and they hold the interest from first word to finish.

CHAPTER I.

My Friend Wiggins is Introduced.

I DINED with Hartley Wiggins at the Hare and Tortoise on an evening in October not very long ago. It may be well to explain that the Hare and Tortoise is the smallest and most select of clubs, whose windows afford a pleasant view of Gramercy park. The club is comparatively young, and it is our joke that we are so far all tortoises, creeping through our several professions without aid from any hare. I hasten to explain that I am a chimney doctor. Wiggins is a lawyer; at least I have seen his name in a list of graduates of the Harvard Law school, and he has an office downtown, where I have occasionally found him sedately playing solitaire while he waited for some one to take him out to luncheon. He spends his summers on a South Dakota ranch, from which he derives a

The Siege of the Seven Suitors

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

"The calendar has said it."

"So you settled your bill with Pippa? I believe this was her day. She makes the change on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Her eyelashes are a trifle too long for the world's peace."

"I dare say. I haven't your charming knack, Ames, of picking up acquaintances, so you mustn't expect me to form lifelong friendships with young women at cash desks. I suppose it didn't occur to you that those young women who tend till and serve the tables in there are persons of education and taste. The Asolando is not a common hashery. There's not a girl in that place who hasn't a social position as good as yours or mine. The Asolando's a kind of fad, you know. Ames; it's not a tavern within the meaning of the inkeepers' act, where common swine are fed for profit. The servants serve for love of the cause; it's a sort of cult."

Wiggins excused himself shortly, and I had a glimpse of him later, in the writing room, engaged upon letters, a fact in itself disquieting, for Wiggins never wrote letters, and it was he who had favored making the Hare and Tortoise writing room into a den for pipe smokers. The epistolary habit, he maintained, was one that should be discouraged.

I was moodily turning over the evening newspaper when Jewett turned up. Jewett always knows everything. He dropped the ball into the green of my immediate interest with a neat approach shot.

"Too bad about old Wiggy," he remarked with his preluding sigh.

"What's the matter with Wiggins?" I demanded.

"Ah! He hasn't told you? Thought he told you everything."

This was meant for a stinger, and I felt the bite of it.

"You do me too much honor. Wiggins is not a man to throw around his confidences."

"And I rather fancy that his love affairs in particular are locked in his bosom."

Jewett was a master of the art of suggestion. He took an unnecessarily long time to light a cigar so that his words might sink deep into my consciousness.

"Saw her once last spring. Got a sight draft from the Bank of Eros."

immortal by doing it first, but a new trouble developed. Doing the high buildings made him dizzy! Honest! He was good, too, and would have made a place, but he had to cut it out. He was so torn up over his two failures that he drew in his share of the perambulator money in riotous living. Lost his wife into the bargain and has settled down to a peaceful life up in Westchester county in one of these cute little bungalows the real estate operators build for you if you pay a dollar down for a picture of an acre lot."

"And the daughter?"

"Well, Bassford Hollister has two daughters. It's the older one that has stolen Wiggins' heart away. She's Cecilia, you know. Very literary and that sort of thing, and pushed tea and cookies at the Asolando when that idiosyncrasy was opened. Wiggins saw her there last spring. Miss Hollister, the aunt, whom I'm fond of calling the chevalier, picked up her nieces about that time and hauled them off to Europe, and Wiggins scampered after them. I don't know what they did to Wiggy, but you see how he acts. I rather imagine that the chevalier didn't smile on his suit. She's a holy terror, that woman, with an international reputation for doing weird and most unaccountable things. She draws a sort of royalty on all the baby buggies in creation. It amounts to a birth tax, in contravention of the free guarantees of the constitution. The people will rise against it some day."

"She's plausible enough, but she's the past mistress of ulterior motive. She got Fortner, the mural painter, up to a place she used to have at Newport a few years ago, ostensibly to do a frieze or something, and she made him teach her to fire a gun. You know Fortner, with his artistic ideals! And he didn't know any more about guns than a flea. It was droll, decidedly droll. But she kept him there a month—wouldn't let him off the reservation; but she paid him his fee just the same, though he never painted a stroke. When he got back to town he was a wreck. It was just like being in jail. I warn you to let her alone. If you should undertake to fix her dues she's likely to put you to work digging potatoes. She's no end of a case."

"Well, Wiggins is a good fellow, one of the very best," I remarked, as I absorbed these revelations, "and it isn't the girl's aunt he wants to marry."

"There's no telling where this affair may lead Wiggins. There's something queer in the wind, all right. The chevalier has brother Bassford where he can't whimper. I rather fancy he feeds from her hand. His girls haven't any prospects except through the chevalier. Nice girls, so I'm told. Miss Cecilia Hollister is living with her aunt."

"And the other sister—where does she come in?"

"Not important, I fancy. Rumor is silent touching her. In fact I've never heard anything of her. But this Cecilia is no end handsome and proud. Poor old Wiggy!"

I was already ashamed of myself for having encouraged Jewett to discuss Wiggins' affairs, and was about to leave him, when he snorted in a disagreeable way he had at some joke that had occurred to him.

"I knew there was something," he said, "about Miss Cecilia's younger sister, and I've just recalled it. The girl has a most extraordinary name."

It was at this moment that I ventured—for it shall have no name—actually began. My eyes still enjoying the Rossettilike visit to the cashier's tiny booth when a suddenly darkened the street door beyond her. The girl lifted her. On the instant the lamp came as she extinguished her light, and aureoled head ceased to be. Anding toward me down the shop I saw a lady, a lady of years, who put the cashier's desk with her eye bent upon the room's inner recesses. Her gown, of a new fashionable was of the severest tailor cut, but was a modified fedora, gray the gown, and adorned with a gray feather. She was short, erect, and moved with a quick, like motion, pausing and glanced the vacant tables that lay between me and the door. She appeared engaged in a calculation of some and she raised a longnette to assist in counting the tables. The cashier passed behind her unseen and I heard the newcomer recite: "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven." And at seven her eyes turned upon me with a look that mingled surprise and annoyance. She took a toward me, and I started to rise she said quickly:

"I beg your pardon, but this seat is the seventh table."

"Now that you call my attention to it," I remarked, gaining my feet, "I am bound to concede the point, any chance I am intruding?"

"Not in the least. On the other hand, I beg that you remain where you are." And without further ado she sank into a chair opposite my own.

I tinkled a tiny crystal bell that among the table furnishings, a waitress appeared and handed the who had thus introduced herself my acquaintance, a copy of the card on which the articles of reference offered by the Asolando indicated within a border of

I have seen his name in a list of graduates of the Harvard Law school, and he has an office downtown, where I have occasionally found him sedately playing solitaire while he waited for some one to take him out to luncheon. He spends his summers on a South Dakota ranch, from which he derives a considerable income.

Wiggins is an athlete, and his summers in the west and persistent training during the winter keep him in fine condition. As I faced him tonight in our favorite corner of the Hare and Tortoise dining room the physical man was fit enough, but I saw at once that he was glum and dispirited. He had through many years honored me with his confidence, and I felt that tonight after we got well started I should hear what was on his mind. I hoped to cheer him with the story of a visit I had by chance paid that afternoon to the Asolando tea room, for, though Wiggins is a most practical person, I imagined that he would be diverted by my description of a place which, I felt sure, nothing could tempt him to visit. I shall never forget the look he gave me when I remarked at about his third spoonful of soup:

"By the way, I dropped into an odd place this afternoon—Burne-Jones buns, Rossetti macaroons and all that sort of thing. They call it the Asolando!"

I was ambling on, expecting to sharpen his curiosity gradually as I related the joys of the tea room, but at Asolando his spoon dropped, and he stared at me blankly. It should be known that Wiggins is not a man whose composure is lightly shaken.

"The Asolando," I repeated, to break the spell of his blank stare. "Know the place?"

He recovered in a moment, but he surveyed me quizzically before replying.

"Of course I have heard of the Asolando, but I thought you didn't go in for that sort of thing. It's a trifle girlish, you know."

"That's hardly against it! I found the girlishness altogether attractive."

"You always were tolerably susceptible, but broiled butterflies and moth wings' souffle seem to me rather pale food for a man in your vigorous health."

"They must have discriminated in your favor. I saw no such things, though to be sure I was afraid to quibble over the waitress' suggestions. May I ask when you were there?"

"Oh, I dropped in quite accidentally one day last spring. I saw the sign and remembered that somebody had spoken of the place, and I was tired, and it was a long way to the club, and—"

Disimulation is not so art as Wiggins attempts to practice it at times. He is by nature the most straightforward of mortals. It was clear that he was withholding something, and I resolved to get to the bottom of it.

"I don't think the Asolando is a place that would attract either of us, and yet the viands are good as such stuff goes, and the gentle handmaidens are restful to the eye—Lippa, Francesca, Gloria and the rest of 'em."

Wiggins pried open his artichoke with the care of a botanist. He had regained his composure, but I saw that the subject interested him.

"You were there this afternoon?" he inquired.

"Yes, my first and only appearance."

"And this is Monday."

at least I have seen his name in a list of graduates of the Harvard Law school, and he has an office downtown, where I have occasionally found him sedately playing solitaire while he waited for some one to take him out to luncheon. He spends his summers on a South Dakota ranch, from which he derives a considerable income.

Jewett was a master of the art of suggestion. He took an unnecessarily long time to light a cigar so that his words might sink deep into my consciousness.

"Saw her once last spring. Got a slight draft from the Bank of Eros. Followed her across the multitudinous sea. Bang!"

"But Wiggy hasn't been abroad. Wiggy was on his Dakota ranch all summer. He's all tanned from the sun. Just as he is every fall," I persisted.

"Wrote you from out there, did he? Sent you picture postals showing him herding his cattle or whatever the beasts are? Kept in touch with you all the time, did he? I tell you his fine color is due to Switzerland, not Dakota."

"Wiggins isn't a letter writer nor the sort of person who wants to paper your house with picture postals. His not writing doesn't mean that he wasn't on his ranch," I replied, annoyed by Jewett's manner.

"Never dropped you before, though, I wager," he chirruped. "I tell you I saw Miss Cecilia Hollister at the Asolando teashop, just a glimpse, but almost immediately he went abroad in pursuit of her. The chevalier—that's her Aunt Octavia—was along and another niece. My sister saw the bunch of them in Geneva, where the chevalier was breaking records. A whole troop of suitors followed them everywhere. My sister knows the girl—Cecilia—and she's known Wiggy all her life. She's just home and told me about it last night. She thinks the chevalier has some absurd scheme for marrying off the girl. It's all very queer, our Wiggy being mixed up in it."

"Don't be absurd, Jewett. There's nothing unusual in a man being in love. That's one fashion that doesn't change much. I venture to say that Wiggins will prove a formidable suitor. Wiggins is a gentleman, and the girl would be lucky to get him."

"Quite right, my dear Ames; but, alas, there are others. The competition is encouraged by the aunt, the veteran chevalier. My sister says the chevalier seems to favor the suit of a Nebraska philosopher who rejoices in the melodious name of Dick."

Jewett was playing me for all his story was worth and enjoying himself immensely.

"For heaven's sake, go on!"

"Nice girl, this Cecilia. You know the Hollisters—oodles of money in the family. The chevalier's father scored big in baby buggies—responsible for the modern sleep inducing perambulators; sold out to a trust. The father of Wiggins' inamorata had started out to be a marine painter. A founder of this club, come to think of it, but dropped out long ago. You have heard of him—Bassford Hollister. Funny thing his having to give up art. Great gifts for the marine, but never could overcome tendency to seasickness. Honest! Every time he painted a wave it upset him horribly. The doctors couldn't help him. Next tried his hand at the big gulches downtown. There was a chance there to hit off the metropolitan skyline and become for having encouraged Jewett to discuss Wiggins' affairs, and was about to leave him, when he sported in a disagreeable way he had at some joke that had occurred to him.

"I knew there was something," he said, "about Miss Cecilia's younger sister, and I've just recalled it. The girl has a most extraordinary name, quite the most remarkable you ever heard. Hezekiah! Bang! That's the little sister's name. Bassford Hollister had been saving that name for a son, who never appeared, to do honor to old Hezekiah, the perambulator chap. So they named the girl for her grand dad."

I left him and learned at the office that Wiggins had, within half an hour, left the club hurriedly in a cab, taking a trunk with him. He had mentioned no mail address to the clerk, and this was very unlike Wiggins.

CHAPTER II.

The Beginning of My Adventure.

WIGGINS' strange conduct and Jewett's dark hints so disturbed me that the very next afternoon I again sought the Asolando tea room, feeling that in its atmosphere I might best weigh the few facts I possessed touching my friend's love affairs.

Those who care for details in these matters may be interested to know that the Asolando is tucked away among print shops and exclusive haberdashers, a stone's throw from Fifth Avenue. The Asolando tea room is sacred to wooers of the flute of Pan, secession photographers and confident believers in an early revival of the poetic drama. There is about the little room a suggestion of tranquillity, of charming cloistral peace, with its arts and crafts chairs and tables, its racks of books, its portraits of Browning, Rossetti, Burne-Jones and kindred spirits.

I chose a table, sat down and suggested (one does not order at the Asolando) a few articles from the card an attendant handed me.

"We're out of the Paracelsus ginger cookies," she replied, "but I recommend a Ruskin sandwich with our own special chocolate. The whipped cream is unusually fine today."

She eyed me with a severity to which I was not accustomed, and I acquiesced without parley in her suggestion. Before leaving me she placed on my table the latest minor poet in green and gold.

It was nearly 3 o'clock, and I was alone in the Asolando. The attending deities in their snowy gowns had vanished behind the screen at the rear of the room. The food and drink with which I had been promptly served proved excellent. Even the minor poet in green and gold had held my attention, though imitations of Coventry Patmore's odes bore me as a rule. Near the street, half concealed behind a mosquito-like grill, sat the cashier, reading. A bundle of joss sticks in a green jar beside this young woman sent a thin smoke into the air. Her head was bent above her book in quiet attention. The light from an electric lamp made a glow of her golden hair. She was an incident of the general picture, a part of a scene that contained no jarring note. A man who could devise, in the heart of the great city, a place so instinct with repose so lulling to all the senses was not less than a public benefactor.

sunk into a chair opposite my own. I tinkled a tiny crystal bell that among the table furnishings, a waitress appeared and handed the who had thus introduced herself my acquaintance, a copy of the card on which the articles of request offered by the Asolando indicated within a border of painted field daisies.

"Never mind that," said the lady, ignoring the card. "You bring me a caviar sandwich, cocktail, a pink one, provided sided"—and she held the wa with her eye—"you have the Im caviar and your barkeeper knows proper frappe of the spirit lighter waited."

"Pardon me, madam," replied waitress icily, "but you have mis the place. The Asolando serves ing stronger than the pure wat its own fount of Castalia. Intox are not permitted here."

"Intoxicants!" repeated the old with asperity. "Do I look like a son given to intoxication? I dar your Castalia water is nothing but ton whose flavor has been dest by distillation. You may bring the sandwich I have mentioned with it a pot of tea. Yes, thank lemon with the tea."

As the girl vanished with the trend that marked the service, place I again made as to rise, but old lady lifted her hand with a gesture.

"Pray remain. It is not un that we have friends and ideas in mon, and as you were seated a seventh table it is possible that ordering of fate has brought together."

She took from me in the hand she had now ungloved the copy of minor poet, glanced at it scornfully tossed it upon the floor with mark of disdain.

"What species of mental dis does this place represent?" she demanded.

"It is sacred to the fine arts entirely; an endowed tea room where sons of artistic ideals may come fresh body and soul. Such at seems to be the program. This is my second visit, but I have long it spoken of by artists, poets and ers of my friends."

"I am sixty-two years old, a man, and I beg to inform you consider the Asolando the most posterous thing I have ever heard in this most preposterous city. from a casual glimpse of you I justified in saying that a man in apparent physical health might better business than frequent midafternoon a shop that seems a remarkably stupid expression twentieth century anaemia."

"Attendance here is not compulsory. I remarked defensively.

"If you imply that I must sought the place voluntarily let me rect your false impression immediately. I dropped in here for the excellent son that this shop is the seventh merical progression from Fifth Avenue."

"You were not guided by any feeling of interest, then, but rather by station?"

"That remark is unworthy of a of your apparent intelligence. I born on the 7th of November, and the great events of my life have occurred on the 7th of the month."

I was relieved to find that she accepted the tea and sandwiches the waitress had brought without parley.
It is with shame I confess that in the first moments of my encounter I believed her capable of quarreling with a waitress, but she thanked the girl pleasantly, lifting her head with a smile that illumined her face attractively. Her demand for a cocktail had not been wholly convincing as to her sincerity, and I wondered whether she were not playing a part of some kind.
She suggested pleasant and wholesome things.

In any event the impression was wholly agreeable. I had to do with a lady and a lady of no mean degree.
The marks of breeding were upon her,
and she spoke with that quiet authority that is the despair of the vain and vulgar. Her features were small and delicate, her ringless hands were perfectly formed and both face and hands
belied the age to which she had so frankly confessed. She was more than twice my age, and there was not the slightest reason why she should not address me if it pleased her to do so,
and her obsession as to the potency of
the numeral seven was not in itself proof of an ill balanced mind. Musing thus, I reached the conclusion that this encounter was very likely the sort of thing that happened to patrons of the Asolando. My time has, however,
a certain value, and I began to wonder just how I should escape. I was about to excuse myself when my companion suddenly put down her cup and addressed me with a directness
that seemed habitual in her.

"I have formed an excellent opinion
of your bringing up from the manner
in which you have suffered my advances, if I may so call them. You act and speak like a gentleman of education. Will you kindly tell me the nature of your occupation?"

I produced one of my professional cards.

ARNOLD AMES,
Consultant in Chimneys, Suit 92, Landon Building.

She read it aloud without glasses
and mused a moment.

"This is very curious," she remarked, placing my card in a silver case
she drew from her pocket. "This is very curious indeed. It was only yesterday that my friend General Glendenning was speaking of you. He told me that you had rendered him the greatest service in adjusting several flues in his country house at Shinnecock. My own fireplaces doubtless require attention, and you may consider yourself retained. I shall make an early appointment with you. You will find my name and residence sufficiently described on this card."

MISS HOLLISTER,
Hopefield Manor.

"Oh!" I exclaimed, bowing. "Any further introduction is unnecessary,
Miss Hollister."

lar beside her plate to pay her check,
which I noted called for only 40 cents.
I glanced at the cashier's desk. The aureoled head had not reappeared, but immediately I heard a voice murmuring beside me. I had believed myself alone, and in my surprise I thought some wizardry had made audible one of the verses on the wall.

What of Rafael's sonnets, Dante's pla-ture—

It was she whose aureoled head I had marked earlier in the receipt of custom, the girl who had vanished as Miss Hollister appeared. She was not tall, and her eyes, I saw, were brown. She had clearly not climbed far the stairway of her years, but her serenity was the least bit disconcerting.

"Pardon me," I began, "but I am an ignorant Philistine, and cannot cap the verse you have quoted."

"There is no reason why you should do so. It is the rule of the Asolando

her amusement at my answer was more eloquently stated in her eyes.

"I must explain that my sole excuse
for addressing you is that we are required to learn, where possible, just why strangers seek the Asolando."

"In the case of the lady to whom you refer it was a matter of this being the seventh shop from the corner, and my own appearance was due to the idlest curiosity, inspired by enthusiastic descriptions of the Asolando's atmosphere and rumors of the cheapness of its food."

"The reasons are quite ample," was her only comment, and her manner did not encourage further conversation.

"May I ask," I persisted, "whether the Asolando's staff is permanent and whether, if I return another day?"

"I take it that you do not mean to be impertinent, so I will answer that my service here is limited to Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. On the other days Pippa is in the cash booth.
My name at the Asolando is Francesca. Kindly write your name in the visitors' book at the door as you pass out."

There was no ignoring this hint. I thought she smiled as I left her.

At Hopefield Manor.

MISS HOLLISTER'S summons
lay on my desk the next morning and was of the briefest. I was requested to call at Hopefield Manor at 4 o'clock
the following afternoon, being Thursday. A trap would meet me at Kato-nah, and it was suggested that I come prepared to spend the night, so that the condition of the flues might be discussed and any necessary changes planned during the evening. The note, signed Octavia Hollister, was written in a flowing hand on a wholly impecable note sheet stamped Hopefield Manor, Katonah.

Before taking the train I sought Wiggins by telephone at his office and at the Hare and Tortoise, where he lodged, but without learning anything as to his whereabouts. His office did not answer, but Wiggins' office had never been responsive to the telephone, so this was not significant. The more I considered his conduct during the recital of my visit to the Asolando the more I wondered, and in spite of my wish to ignore utterly Jewett's revelations as to Wiggins' summer abroad, I was forced to the conclusion that Jewett had not lied. I had known Wiggins long, and this was the first time that I had ever been conscious of any withholding of confidence on his part,
and on my own I had not merely confided all my hopes and aims to him.

asked a tiny crystal bell that was hanging from the table furnishings, and a small, round, silver, bell-shaped object appeared and handed the lady, who had thus introduced herself to acquaintance, a copy of the tiny book in which the articles of refreshment offered by the Asolando were listed within a border of hand-drawn field daisies.

"I never mind that," said the lady in ignoring the card. "You may make me a caviar sandwich and a little pink one, provided—provided—and she held the waitress by the eye—"you have the imported and your barkeeper knows the frappe of the spirit lighter I have."

"Don't you, madam," replied the waitress icily, "but you have mistaken me. The Asolando serves nothing stronger than the pure water of the fountain of Castalia. Intoxicants are not permitted here."

"Intoxicants?" repeated the old lady idly. "Do I look like a person to intoxication? I dare say Castalia water is nothing but Crochese favor has been destroyed stillation. You may bring me a sandwich I have mentioned and

and a pot of tea. Yes, thank you; with the tea."

The girl vanished with the light that marked the service of the Asolando again made as to rise, but the old lady lifted her hand with a delay-stature.

"I remain. It is not unlikely I have friends and ideas in command as you were seated at the table it is possible that some change of fate has brought us to—"

took from me in the hand which I now ungloved the copy of my poet, glanced at it scornfully and it upon the floor with every of disdain.

"sacred to the fine arts apparatus an endowed tea room where perfect artistic ideals may come to embody and soul. Such at least to be the program. This is only a visit, but I have long heard of it by artists, poets and other my friends."

"I am sixty-two years old, young man, and I beg to inform you that I am the Asolando the most precious thing I have ever heard of is most preposterous city. And a casual glimpse of you I feel in saying that a man in your physical health might be in business than frequenting it. If you bear your father's name, I dare say it was he whom I met ten years ago in Paris. There is no reason therefore why we should not be the best of friends."

It was a kind fate indeed that had led me back to the Asolando, and introduced me to the aunt of Wiggins' innamorata. It may well be believed that I was immediately interested, attentive, absorbed. As she smoothed her gloves, Miss Hollister continued to speak in a low musical voice that was devoid of any of the quavers of age.

"On the day I reached my sixtieth year, Mr. Ames, I decided that my humdrum life must cease. The strictest conventions had guided me from earliest childhood. My experience of life had been limited to those things which women of education and means enjoy—or suffer, as you please to take it. Two years ago I chartered a yacht and cruised among the Lesser Antilles, enjoying many adventures. Later I crossed the Andes, and I have just returned from Switzerland, where I accomplished some of the most difficult ascents. I have a clipping bureau engaged to inform me of all rumors of hidden treasure and sunken ships, and I hope that of this something may come, as I retain a marine engineer and corps of divers and can leave at an hour's notice for any likely hunting ground. This may strike you as the most whimsical self-indulgence. Tell me candidly whether my remarks so affect you."

"If it were not that your benefactions of all kinds have given you noble eminence among American philanthropists I might be less biased in favor of the sort of thing you describe, but your gifts to orphanages, colleges, hospitals—"

"Ah!" she interrupted, "enough of that. Philanthropy in these times is only selfish exploitation, the recreation of the conscience stricken. But you see no reason why," she pursued eagerly, "if I wished to dig up the Caribbean sea in search of Spanish doubloons, I should not do so? Answer me frankly, without the slightest fear."

"I assure you, Miss Hollister, that such projects appeal to me strongly. I have often lamented that my own lot fell in these eventless times. As an architect I proved something of a failure; as a chimney doctor I lead a useful life, but the very usefulness of it bores me, and besides many people take me for a sweep."

"I dare say they do, for unfortunately many people are fools. But I am bent upon adventure. My physician pronounces me good for ten years more of active life, and I intend to keep amused. If I were a young man like you I should crawl through chimneys no more, but take to the open road. I resent the harsh clang of these meaningless years. As I walked among the hills that lie behind the manor this morning I heard the bugles calling. I should like to ask you further as to your unusual profession, but errands summon me elsewhere. However, something tells me we shall meet again."

She rose in her swift, birdlike fashion and passed lightly down the room and through the door. She had left a dol-

customers when necessary by speaking of a line of verse. We are not allowed to open a conversation, no matter how imperative, with 'Listen,' or the even more vulgar 'Say.'"

"A capital idea, of which I heartily approve, but now that I am a waiting auditor, eager"—

"It's merely the check, if you please," she interrupted coldly. "My desk is closed, and the room will refuse further patrons for the next hour, as the executive committee of the Shelley society meets here at 4 o'clock, and the Asolando is denied to outsiders."

"This, then, is my dismissal? The lady who joined me here for a time left a dollar, which, you will see, is somewhat in excess of her check. My own charge of 50 cents is so moderate that I cannot do less than leave $1 also."

"Thank you," she replied, unshaken by my generosity. "The tips at the Asolando all go to the Sweetness and Light club, which is just now engaged in circulating Matthew Arnold's poems in leaflet form in the jobbing district."

I bowed and had turned away when she arrested me with the line—

My good blade carves the casques of men.

I turned toward her. "Permit me to inquire," she asked, "whether the lady who joined you here expressed any interest in the life beautiful as it is exemplified in the Asolando?"

"I am constrained to say that she did not. She spoke of the Asolando in the most contemptuous terms."

The golden head bowed slightly, and a smile hovered about her lips. But wish to ignore utterly Jewett's revelations as to Wiggins' summer abroad, I was forced to the conclusion that Jewett had not lied. I had known Wiggins long, and this was the first time that I had ever been conscious of any withholding of confidence on his part, and on my own I had not merely confided all my hopes and aims to him, but I had leaned upon him often in my perplexities. There was, indeed, a kind of boyish compact between us that we should support each other through all difficulties. His reserve hid, I knew, a diffident and sensitive nature, and it was wholly possible that if his affair with Cecilia Hollister had not prospered he had fled to his ranch there to wrestle in seclusion with his disappointment. My mind was busy with such speculations as I sped toward Katonah, where I found the trap from Hopfield Manor awaiting me.

"It's rather poor going over the hills; about five miles, sir," said the driver as we set off.

This was the first week in October. There was just zest enough in the air to make a top coat comfortable. The team of blacks spoke well for Miss Hollister's stable, and the liveried driver kept them moving steadily, but eased the pace as we rose on the frequent slopes to the shoulders of the pleasant Westchester hills. Early frosts had already wrought their miracle in the foliage, and the battle banners of winter's vanguard flashed along the horizons. I rejoiced that my business, vexatious enough in many ways, yet afforded me so charming an outing as this.

Ways of Mankind When Public

BIG COMFORT AT SMALL COST.

Try a Chiffonier Instead of an Extra

Ice Cream Expedient.

Dear Elsa—While waiting for Dick to join me at the Grand Central station
the other day I whiled away the time (fifteen minutes, mind you—men are always punctual!) by observing the people who used the little mirrors over the automatic chewing gum machines.

It was funny to note the different ways in which the glasses were used by the women and the men. When a pretty girl came tripping along and caught the reflection of her face in the mirror she immediately looked to see if her nose was shiny and, if so, surreptitiously or openly, according to her nature, applied a dab of powder; or she readjusted her veil or tucked in a wayward lock of hair. In this way she justified her vanity—or was it vanity
after all? But the men, my dear! They don't care a rap whether their noses are shiny or not. Still I noticed that they spent just as long a time in front of the mirrors gazing at themselves as the women. And such tricks as they played—'twould make the angels weep
to see them. They turned their heads first this way and then that, looked straight into their soulful eyes, turned back their upper lips and closely examined their teeth and even smiled at themselves to get the effect.

Now, from all these signs and wonderful grimaces I gathered that our masculine friends were freely looking at and admiring themselves and that the performance might be termed just plain vanity. The women had a deeper and more subtle excuse for using the glasses—the details of the toilet to adjust.

To stop knocking the men, who, after all, are pretty decent creatures for the most part, let me tell you about a novel plan hit upon by a young mother who, with her two little daughters, is spending the summer at Atlantic City.

The distance was not great between the home of the thrifty matron and the summer city by the sea, so she decided not to take much luggage—not more than she could possibly get on without. But plan as she would it became a question at last of either getting another trunk or leaving at home much needed belongings.

A wardrobe trunk, she decided, would solve the difficulty beautifully, as it would not only give the required space,
but would be a boon in the boarding place at the seashore.

A telephone inquiry as to the cost of the wardrobe trunk quickly showed this little mother that another way out of the difficulty must be found.

By putting her brains to work it was not long before the solution came.
In the back hall upstairs there was a cheap chiffonier of oak, in which were kept the children's dresses and underwear. She decided that if she could express charge would be $1.20 for every hundred pounds. Madam then set to work upon the receipt of this joyful news to arrange the contents of the chiffonier more carefully with a view to safe transportation.

After the contents of the chiffonier
had been settled the five drawers were locked and the whole thing was covered with an old piece of canvas and firmly tied with rope. The express company delivered it safely at the hotel and it was placed in her room at a total cost of $1.80.

Just think, dear, of the comfort and convenience one can gain if her "think tank" will only work a little overtime.

For the last few weeks I have had the most hopelessly ignorant Swedish maid to struggle with it has ever been my bad fortune to encounter. Although I had to labor long and earnestly to instruct her how to do the simplest household duties there is one useful thing she taught me. It is this: How to dispose of left over ice cream—that is, cream that has been turned out on a plate.

The Swedish idea is to take a glass fruit jar, large or small, according to the quantity of the cream, and pack
the cream down hard, in it with a spoon. I want to emphasize that word
"pack" because I think it is that which makes the process so successful. When the cream is in the jar put a piece of paper over the top and then screw on the cover as tightly as you can. Now place the jar back in the pall with the salt and ice. Several hours after this process has been accomplished you will find the ice cream as firm as when first made. If not even better, no matter how soft it may have been when it was put in the jar. You will not find this the case, however, unless the pall

VACATION WORK

Now Is the Time For Making Advance Christmas Presents.

NOVELTY IN CENTERPIECES.

Here's a Brand New Idea in Embroidery Hoops—They Are Made of French Oilcloth, Which Is Used as a Foundation Stretcher.

Now is the time to do some advance
work for Christmas.

The new designs in art needlework
are practical. The materials are washable and durable, and the most prominent stitches are those which require the least labor. The busy woman of today likes designs which quickly and easily give effective results.

Linens and crashes in white and natural tones are seen in centerpieces,
dresser scarfs and pillow covers.
Dresser scarfs and pin cushions in white pique have scalloped edges and embroidery done in color.

Coronation and Torpedo Braids.

Coronation braid is used in combination with torpedo braid. Some pretty effects are in daisy designs, with the centers worked in color in long and short stitch outlined with torpedo braid.

Darning, or Persian embroidery as it is called, is given quite a slant, producing a decidedly new appearance. The designs and colors are in Persian effects, and the darning stitch is worked over a tinted background. Many of the pillow covers, table runners and dresser scarfs are good imitations of Persian rugs, both in the design and coloring.

Punch work is still used, but in combination with French knots. French knots in various sizes will be extensively used in decoration. They are usually in floral form in the soft pastel tones, forgetmenots being the most popular. The work is done in white or color. An attractive design is a French basket filled with floral designs
in French knots. Dresser scarfs, etc., in white linen have designs outlined in small French knots. Dutch designs are effective worked in blue knots, with
the edge finished with cluny lace.
Insets of hand made cluny lace have the edges worked in solid knots. Pillow covers, centerpieces and scarfs in natural color linen are often decorated with malta braid.

Oilcloth Instead of Hoops.

A new idea is a centerpiece of white linen and plate doilies made in one. It is cut round to fit a table and six pieces about eighteen inches in length extend from the centerpiece, leaving a space sufficiently large for a bread and butter plate doily. The edges are scalloped and the embroidery is done
in eyelet work.

Instead of using an embroidery hoop
for small stitches and dainty work like letters on handkerchiefs and pillow slips French oilcloth is often used for a stretcher. Cut a square rather larger than the figure or initial to be em-brothered and baste it with fine cotton on to the back of the material. The glazed surface prevents the needle
from piercing the oilcloth, while its

A telephone inquiry as to the cost of the wardrobe trunk quickly showed this little mother that another way out of the difficulty must be found.

By putting her brains to work it was not long before the solution came. In the back hall upstairs there was a cheap chiffonier of oak, in which were kept the children's dresses and underwear. She decided that if she could do it she would take the chiffonier as it stood, doing away, you see, with the bother of packing it first and repacking its contents in a trunk.

This clever little lady called up an express company and asked if she could express an uncrated chiffonier and, if so, what it would cost. She was told that she could do so and that the Eggs Mollet.

Do you know what eggs mollet are? A cross between hard boiled and soft boiled eggs. Plunge the eggs in boiling water, then put on the back stove for ten minutes, but do not stir. This makes the eggs soft and tender. Put in ice water and when the chilled remove the shells, or keep the eggs whole. When to use, heat in a meat stock on rounds of buttered toast, cream sauce poured over. Or it can be on a bed of spinach, chopped and highly seasoned. Only a fresh egg can be cooked in this way.

The Townsite Commissioner of the Canadian Pacific Railway, says:—
"Swift Current will become the largest city in Southwestern Saskatchewan."

In 1912 alone Swift Current DOUBLED its population—it is now about 5,500 and conservative authorities estimate that the population will be close to 10,000 by the end of 1913.

This picture shows Swift Current's remarkable expansion as a railway centre. What will it be when 13 branches radiate in all directions. Railways make Cities in Western Canada

Winnipeg Saturday Post—

"Lots in Mount Pleasant are a good investment for Swift Current is growing rapidly in the northerly direction and 11th Avenue is one of the leading thoroughfares, practically the highway of the north."

The main thoroughfares of Swift Current are 12th, 11th and 10th Avenues. All three pass through Mount Pleasant.

WESTERN CANADA'S greatest cities of to-day owe their remarkable development to the immense tributary country surrounding them. Swift Current dominates a vaster area of territory than any one of these big cities. These famous large cities also owe their growth to their strategical position as railway centres. The railway situation of Swift Current is equalled by no other city in Western Canada. Its future as a distributing point is absolutely assured. No less than thirteen branches of the C.P.R., C.N.R., G.T.P. and Great Northern will be in operation building up Swift Current from many different directions inside of two years. To-day Swift Current has the largest initial shipments of wheat in all the West, reaching the enormous total of 2,250,000 bushels from the 1912 crop.

Swift Current has every advantage required to make it a City SECOND TO NONE IN THE WHOLE OF THE CANADIAN WEST and we offer the highest class residential property in Swift Current.

RIGHT SOIL FOR ALFALFA.

Deep Loam Is Best, but Other Kinds Will Produce Crops.

Many people make the fatal mistake of expecting alfalfa to do well on soils that are not fit properly to produce any kind of crop, says Bulletin 38 of the Purdue university (Indiana) station. There is just as much need of care in selecting and preparing soils for alfalfa as for any other crop and probably more because of its deep rooting habits and large plant food requirements.

Deep, loamy soils with open subsoils are undoubtedly best for alfalfa, but there is plenty of evidence to show that it may be successfully produced on almost any type of soil, from light sandy or gravelly loams and peats or mucks to heavy clays, provided that it is well drained, sweet and properly supplied with organic matter and available plant food.

Many soils that at present are not fit for alfalfa culture may be made so by providing drainage facilities, correct- ing acidity, adding organic matter or supplying needed plant food, according to the requirements. Good drainage is essential in order that the roots may go deep into the soil. Hardpan must be broken up or avoided altogether. Soils that are sour may be made sweet by thorough drainage and the applica- tion of lime.

A good supply of decomposable or- ganic matter in the soil helps the bac- terial action in making plant food available, facilitates the inoculating process and, together with a good drain- age, prevents heaving in the spring. For soils that are out of condition in this respect a good way to supply or- ganic matter if sufficient manure is not available is to raise and plow under a crop of cowpeas or some other green manuring crop before attempting to grow alfalfa.

Peat and muck soils may be used for alfalfa if they are well drained and properly supplied with mineral plant food. Potash is nearly always lacking in these soils, and often phosphoric acid and lime must also be supplied. Soils that are subject to flooding are not good for alfalfa.

WASTE OF GOOD MATERIAL.

Tons of good humus making material are allowed to lie un- used on many farms. Much of the unsightly rubbish which mars the appearance of the premises could be changed into valuable plant food by compost- ing. Every farm and especially every truck farm should have a compost heap into which sods, lawn clippings, leaves and other waste matter could be thrown and rotted down. If wet down and forked over occasionally such stuff will soon be turned into fine garden mold.—Farm Journal.

Fertilizers For Apples.

At a meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural society Wilfred Wheeler recommended this formula as a basis for fertilizing young apple trees: Six pounds of slag, two pounds of potash (low grade sulphate), one pound nitrate of soda. An application of a pound of this mixture per tree per year of tree's age will keep it growing in a healthy state.

RUN BY WOMEN.

French Town, Where Mere Man Stands Very Little Show.

In contrasting woman as a butter- fly and as a busy bee, The London Graphic comments on the small amount of clothing worn by the fash- ionable women of to-day and the mas- culine attire aped by some freakish women and calls attention to the fact that women who really compete with men in hard work stick to the con- servative clothes of their sex.

This is particularly true of the French working-woman. The French peasant woman fills a big place in the agricultural life of France, while in the towns we find the petite bour- geoise taking an active share in com- merce—a widow often running a busi- ness entirely alone.

These facts explain the existence of Froissy, a village in the department of l'Oise, on the borders of l'Isle de

A MESSAGE FROM A WOMAN TO WOMEN

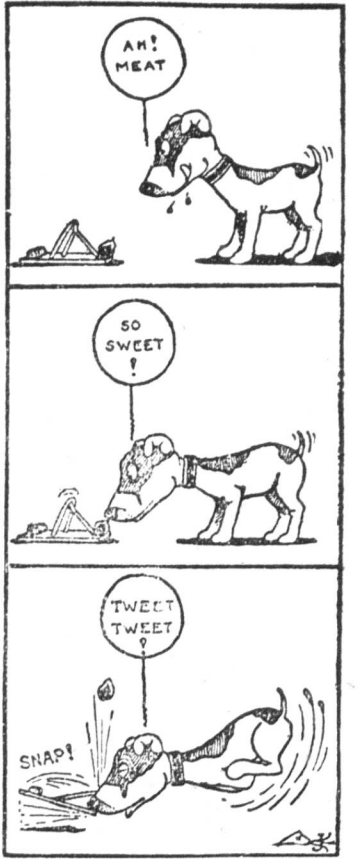

"Every Woman Should Take 'Fruit-a-tives'"

LAKELET, ONT., MAY 12th, 1911
"Kindly publish this letter of mine if you think it will benefit other women who might be afflicted with the diseases I have had in the past, but am now, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives", completely cured of. It is my firm belief that every woman should take "Fruit-a-tives" if she wants to keep herself in good health.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I was constantly troubled with what is com- monly known as "Nerves" or severe Nervousness. This Nervousness brought on the most violent attacks of Sick Headache, for which I was constantly taking doctors' medicine without any permanent relief. Constipation was also a source of great trouble to me and for which the Doctors said "I would have to take medicine all my life", but "Fruit-a-tives" banished all these trou- bles and now I am a well woman!"

ALFALFA AND SWINE.

Not the moldy old maxims, away out of date, but the pork-ers we raise, that are paying the freight. They roam through the pastures, red, white, spotted, black, and the wealth they are making fills many a sack. And still opportunity knocks at our door. With the millions we ship, there's a market for more.

On seas of alfalfa, in shadow and sheen, float cargoes of feed through the billows of green, and again and again on that marvelous tide the ripples of richness flash, wondrous and wide. Alfalfa, sweet emblem of plenty and charm, may the wave of thy verdure flood every farm!

Time comes when each acre must yield without flaw. Production must double is nature's grim law. The cities will teem with vast millions that toil, and life, with its hopes, must depend on the soil. What methods more wise could the farmer combine than raising alfalfa and fattening swine?—Brad in Kansas Farmer.

DOUBLE YOUR EGG CROP.

Use of the Trap Nest May Do the Trick—Right Mating Necessary.

In Farm and Fireside a contributor says that poultry raisers can practically double their egg production if they persistently use the trap nest. Following is an extract from his article:

"For the benefit of those who are not acquainted with the trap nest I will explain in detail its purpose. The trap nest is a nest so contrived that when the hen enters she springs a 'trap' which closes the door and holds her captive until she is released by the attendant. The nest is of sufficient size to allow the hen plenty of space to move around in or she would be apt to break the egg.

"By taking the hens of highest trap nest record and mating them with males descended from heavy layers you will lay the foundation of a good strain of heavy layers. By careful trap nest culling and with the same care in breeding, year after year, you will build your flock up to a high state of efficiency.

"It is not at all uncommon for flocks that are trap nested to average 180 eggs per hen per year. At the same time these flocks not infrequently contain individuals that have a record of 200 to 230 eggs each per year.

"The latest figures at hand from the department of agriculture declare that the average farm hen lays less than eighty eggs per year. Sixty eggs per hen per year would probably be over-estimating the average uncared for farm hen. At any rate, the great difference between 200 to 230 eggs and sixty or eighty eggs is enough to think about seriously."

French working-woman. The French peasant woman fills a big place in the agricultural life of France, while in the towns we find the petite bourgeoisie taking an active share in commerce—a widow often running a business entirely alone.

These facts explain the existence of Froissy, a village in the department of l'Oise, on the borders of l'Isle de France and Picardy, with a population of between 500 and 600 souls. And in this very exceptional village all the public posts are filled by women.

The stationmaster is Mme. Taillefer. Her husband is a guard. It does not trouble him that he has to take occasional official instructions from his wife. He knows that if she were a guard and he the stationmaster the home would suffer. Think also what a community of interests these two billets provide for them!

Froissy gets its daily mail delivered by a woman postman while it is the business of another employe des postes to see the outward mail aboard the train.

In Froissy there is no such person as a male barber. All the men's heads are placed at the mercy of Mlle. Jeanne Marchandin, who with skillful hands shaves or cuts the hair of all her friends. They are her friends, for who would quarrel with the only barber in the place?

The most striking and interesting figure in the community, however, is Mme. Druhon Marchandin. Hers is the task of heralding all important public events with drum music—weddings, for instance. She has an erect, martial figure, strongly marked and humorous features, and bears proudly the weight of her 80 years.

An odd occupation for a woman is that of road mender. Lastly, there is the young telegraphist, who keeps Froissy in touch with the outside world.

Quiz.

The word quiz is one of the few English words which has no root nor etymological meaning to give a hint of what it signifies.

It is said, in fact, that the manufacturer of the word himself did not know what it meant. He made it up jokingly, according to the following story of the word's origin:

Many years ago there lived in Dublin a person whose name was Daly. According to custom he and a party of friends were gathered together one evening, when he made a wager that by the end of the following day every man in Dublin would be speaking a word having no meaning and being derived from no language known.

The wager was eagerly taken up by Daly's associates, who were sure that he had no chance of winning under the circumstances.

Daly owned among other things a theatre and after the party had broken up he called up all the men connected with the theatre, assigned to each a certain portion of the city, supplied them with chalk and instructed them to write the letters "Q U I Z" on every door and shop window in town before daylight. His orders were carried out so effectually that before the morning of the following day was over everybody was asking of his neighbor the meaning of the mysterious word "quiz." The ignorance of its meaning and its sudden appearance all over the city created talk and conjecture for many a day.

When the truth that it was all a joke came out the word was adopted as a synonym for a jest and expressive also of a puzzle because of the questions and general perplexity it had aroused.

To quiz means, therefore, in one sense, to ask questions, and in other to quiz a person means to jest with or poke fun at him.

Best Plowman.

Who is the best plowman in the country? That question will be decided on Nov. 5th. There is already great rivalry among the boys. Some of the older farmers have their partisans, and it would not surprise anyone if they came out and showed the young fellows how plowing should be done. A $9.00 rocking chair in addition to $15.00 cash prize should bring out a host of entries in men's sod. Make your entries early with G. B. Curran, Sec.-Treas.

Fire in Penitentiary.

On Saturday evening, about seven o'clock, a fire broke out in the drying room of Portsmouth penitentiary, and did damage to the extent of about $15,000. It is thought that the fire started in the north-west corner of the room. It spread up the elevator shaft to the changing-room, which is situated on the second floor. After completely gutting that floor, the blaze made its way to the ceiling and roof above, and ruined them. The changing-room is the place where the convicts go once a week to get clean clothing and to leave the soiled garments so as to have them sent to the laundry. At the time of the fire there was a considerable quantity of clothing, blankets and boots stored away, and all these things were completely destroyed. None of the convicts were in the slightest danger, as the place where the fire occurred in a long distance from the cells.

Opera House—Big Feature Event.

The Union Feature Film Co., have booked for Friday and Saturday Oct. 24th and 25th the great $200,000 photo play production TIGRIS one of the greatest detective photo-plays ever shown. This big feature has been shown at all the leading Theatres in Canada and is endorsed by press and public to be the best of its kind that was ever shown. January, 1912, he delivered one of the best lectures ever heard in Historical Hall. Many of the people of Napanee at that time, expressed a desire to hear him again. His lecture next Friday night (October 24th) should be of equal if not greater interest. Prof. Coleman has recently accepted the position as Dean of the Faculty of Education at Queen's University, which position was left vacant by the death of Dean Ellis. He is regarded as one of Canada's able men and every one who can possibly do so should hear him.

C. N. R. News.

We had the pleasure of interviewing Mr. Sherwood upon return from Ottawa Tuesday morning. He had been over the Canadian Northern Railway Company's line going east on the 19th and returning on the 20th inst. He is very enthusiastic over the route and the capabilities of the line when it is completed. He says that it will be equal to or better than any piece of railway construction when completed, with less curvature and less grade, than other lines in the country. He regards it capable of very fast service, and is most proud of the line and the benefits that must accrue to the town of Napanee, through its direct connection with the City of Ottawa, the seat of the Canadian Government. The Operating Department of the Canadian Northern hope to be in a position within the next thirty days or thereabouts, to start their traffic through to Ottawa and when their superb passenger equipment which they propose to put on this road, is completed, they will then give a most excellent service of which the people of all cities and towns along its route, will be thoroughly satisfied and may point to with pride. We are pleased to have this information or subject matter talked over with Mr. Sherwood as he is possibly as well qualified to know about railway construction and railway lines, as most of our railway people of Canada. He advised us when concluding his interview, that this whole community should co-operate to its greatest extent in assisting this railway company, as they certainly have gone to the limit to secure a satisfactory and good route from Toronto through to Ottawa, thence later the connection to Montreal.
